What You Missed

By Katja Martinez, President of SAGE

On June 24th the council on SAGE hosted a webinar focused on real time solutions and shifting trends in Senior Living during the pandemic.

Lead by Marissa Feliciano (Business Developer at HPI), we discussed the challenges of assisted living facilities during the lockdown and how we can adapt and Design for the changing needs during a crisis (trends to larger units, ability to dine in your room, more private outdoor spaces etc.). Technology also plays a vital part and we need to allow for spaces, such as a telehealth room, integrate UV anti-bacterial lighting, think about seamless integrated sanitation stations and air purifiers throughout.

Thank you to our panelist Stephanie Lucero with HPI Architecture and Melissa Auten with HRI Interior Design!

Project Highlight

THE CASITAS CONCEPT + A NEW PLATFORM FOR SENIOR “CARE FILLED” LIVING

BRADLEY MANSFIELD AIA
WESTBERG WHITE ARCHITECTURE

Active aging is the personalization of senior living where the quality of care is resident-centered, with self-identity and independence to command their days with choice, merit, privacy, respect and individuality. How we want to live in 20 years from now is how we should be designing and building today. Architecture is adapting to these changes by finding new ways of improving active aging experiences within our senior living communities. The personality of each space reflects the essence of home with richness and with a diversity of perspective. A home is all about the people who live in it.

Westberg White Architecture has distinguished a new model for senior living centered upon “care filled” experiences with an authentic atmosphere of home in flexible, residential scaled living. “The Casitas Concept” is a village born of casitas, or small homes with individual character that will form a community of interactions and connections integrated into the various experiences of village life. All villages support the activities of individual expression in their choices of culinary, entertainment, recreation, education, music, live theatre, culture, art and shopping. A village is born from the homes that support it. The Casitas Concept project is designed to bring people out of their home and into their village where they can
